WHO WE ARE:
Our classes enable you to use your French in a variety of situations while giving you direct access to the rich cultures and histories of France and the Francophone (French-speaking) world. Our wide range of classes, many of which make innovative use of technology such as wikis, blogs, and Google maps, will introduce you to a range of places and periods including Versailles, Quebec, Africa, the Caribbean, Paris, the First and Second World Wars, and the French Revolution. You’ll also learn how to carry out original research in French, with French resources. The Study Abroad office and the Office of International Affairs offer a wide range of options for study abroad; our students have studied in Paris, Montpellier, Senegal, and Aix-en-Provence. Students with a background in psychology or the sciences who have taken French at the 200 level or above can also apply to participate in a UIC-run summer social services internship in Paris through the Department of Psychology.

WEBSITE: lcsl.las.uic.edu/french

DEGREES OFFERED: Bachelor of Arts: French, Teaching of French; Master of Arts

POTENTIAL CAREER OPTIONS:
French opens the door to jobs in business, the medical and pharmaceutical fields, applied mathematics, art and architecture, tourism, teaching, the Peace Corps, and other Non-Governmental Organizations

MOST POPULAR COURSES:
• 297: Paris in French Literature, Film and Culture (taught in English)
• 201-202: Literature and Culture from the Crusades to the Twentieth Century
• 440: Topics in French and Francophone Film (taught in English)

WHERE YOU CAN FIND US:
Department of French and Francophone Studies
University Hall, 16th Floor