WHO WE ARE:
The University of Illinois at Chicago’s mission underscores the goal of educating global citizens equipped to thrive in diverse cultural contexts. The Department of Hispanic and Italian Studies takes up this challenge and makes it the philosophical core of all of its programs. Our programs, undergraduate and graduate, are nurturing and stimulating places to grow intellectually and discover the significant opportunities that a major, double-major, minor or graduate degree in Hispanic and Italian Studies make possible for your professional advancement.

WEBSITE: lcsl.las.uic.edu/hispanic-italian

DEGREES OFFERED: Bachelor of Arts: Spanish, Spanish-Economics; Master of Arts; PhD

POTENTIAL CAREER OPTIONS:
Spanish majors pursue a broad variety of professional and academic careers such as international affairs, business, teaching, publishing, translating, non-governmental organizations, sales, trading, finance, banking, tourism, and consulting for public offices and private corporations. Spanish majors also continue on to graduate school to pursue degrees in the Humanities or attend professional schools for Medicine, Law, or Journalism.

A minor in Italian contributes to diverse professional and academic careers such as international affairs, business, teaching, publishing, translating, non-governmental organizations, sales, trading, finance, banking, tourism, and consulting. Italian minors also continue on to graduate school to pursue degrees in the Humanities or attend professional schools for Medicine, Law, or Journalism.

WHERE YOU CAN FIND US:
Department of Hispanic and Italian Studies
University Hall, 17th Floor

For more information please visit las.uic.edu/prospective or email lasinfo@uic.edu
Updated: September 2015