WHO WE ARE:
The Sociology Department has enthusiastic and energetic scholars who study, write about, and engage with the world around us. Faculty study everything from adolescence and young adult sexuality to youth entangled in the juvenile legal system. We are also committed to incorporating undergraduate students, as well as graduate students, into the life of the department, and into the profession. Undergraduates regularly collaborate on research projects. Sociology faculty are committed to education and provide critical training to young people so that they can interact successfully with the world, and use a sociological imagination in whatever career they choose.

WEBSITE: soc.uic.edu

DEGREES OFFERED: Bachelor of Arts, Minor, Master of Arts, PhD

POTENTIAL CAREER OPTIONS:
A major in Sociology will prepare students to undertake graduate studies in sociology and other fields such as other social sciences, social work, law, urban planning, and public health. It is also an excellent preparation for a wide variety of occupations in business and industry, justice system, community and social services, government, education, and research.

MOST POPULAR COURSES:
- 212: Human Sexuality
- 224: Gender and Society
- 215: Sociology of Childhood and Youth
- 225: Racial and Ethnic Groups

WHERE YOU CAN FIND US:
Department of Sociology
Behavioral Sciences Building, 4th Floor